Bitalli wins the Melbourne Cup. 1923 MELBOURNE CUP – BITALLI

Race Info:

Placings: 1st Place Bitalli, 2nd Place Rivoli, 3rd Place Accarak

Jockeys: A. Wilson, J. Munro, D. Zeally

Trainers: J. Scobie, I. H. Andrew, H. McCalman

Winner's Time: 3:24.25

Weight: 44.45kg

Odds: 4/1 favourite

Prize money: £13,288

Considering Bitalli was not raced for six months before his 1923 Melbourne Cup victory, it is not surprising that he started with long odds. However, his eccentric trainer James Scobie had no doubts that Bitalli would still steal the show. The five year old won the race, costing bookmakers £400,000.

5 Airfield Construction Squadron 2017

9 July 2017, 11:00am

Wreath Laying in the Sanctuary

Shrine Representative:

Shrine Governor Squadron Leader Steve Campbell-Wright

Early in 1942, Air Board realised the urgent need for 'an organisation capable of producing airfields in forward areas at short notice while under threat of air attack'. No 5 Airfield Construction Squadron's family tree can be traced back to a detachment of No 1 Mobile Works Squadron which was formed in July 1942 to construct an airfield at Wards Field five miles from Port Moresby. The detachment was named No 1 Mobile Works Squadron (Special Works Force) and it completed its task in the face of extraordinary difficulties. In November 1942, the detachment became No 5 Mobile Works Squadron and on 15th July 1944, was renamed No 5 Airfield Construction Squadron. This title the Squadron has borne proudly ever since. As No 5ACS, the Squadron became part of No 62 Airfield Construction Wing, with a strength of 800 men.

A vintage advertisement for Scotch tape from August 29, 1956. The ad features a cartoon character in a kilt and a photograph of a baby. The text promotes Scotch tape as a 'world famous product' and describes its uses, including taping a feather to a baby's finger. A date stamp in a brown box reads 'AUGUST 29, 1956'.

FOR EVERYONE IN THE FAMILY!

WORLD FAMOUS PRODUCTS

Whether it was "taping a feather to his finger" as suggested by the canny "Scotch" tape firm in a 1956 advert (see right) – a pre-television way of amusing a bouncing baby boy – or a nurse or nanny helping stretch baby out to make him into a "he-man" from 1939, (see opposite), bringing up baby was both simple and serious, and a little avant-garde before the days of the TV and iPad babysitter!

Tape a feather to his finger

He will stay enchanted! There is no limit to the ways you can use "SCOTCH" Tape, the original transparent, adhesive tape, and the world's largest seller. "SCOTCH" Brand Cellulose Tape sticks six times tighter—unrolls easier. Keep "SCOTCH" Tape in every room. In the gay plaid metal dispenser, 1/6. Handy refills, 1/- Buy them by the dozen!

Times change ----- Don't they?

AT Burnie Tasmania, there is a stone obelisk dedicated 'To the memory of the young men belonging to this district who, fighting in defence of the Empire, laid down their lives in the Great War 1914-1918'.

The memorial with the names of the local dead engraved on it, was unveiled by an ex-soldier, Captain Hubert Piecey of the 60th Battalion, First Australian Imperial Force (AIF). On 17 February 1924.

The location of the memorial was of great significance to the citizens of Burnie. According to the Burnie Advocate, the memorial was visible to all entering the town by boat, rail or road. However, construction of Burnie's island breakwater in the early 50s necessitated the removal of the memorial to another site, where today it is visible from the freeway through Burnie.

Similar memorials can be seen in virtually every rural district, country town and suburb in Australia. For Australians, they are daily reminders of their community's loss and sacrifice in war.

Many of the men who landed in Gallipoli were from sheep stations in the Australian bush, or from the fields or townships of New Zealand, and who only a few short months before had no dream of warfare.
